8 Plaintiffs,

9 v.

10 CITY OF SEATTLE, et al.,

11 Defendants.

No. C07-1391RSL

ORDER DENYING DEFENDANT'S
MOTION TO DISMISS

12
13 This matter comes before the Court on “Defendant Detective Sharon Stevens’
14 Motion to Dismiss for Violation of FRCP 4(m).” Dkt. # 22. Pursuant to Fed. R. Civ. P. 4(m):

15 If a defendant is not served within 120 days after the complaint is filed, the court –
16 on motion or on its own after notice to the plaintiff – must dismiss the action
17 without prejudice against that defendant or order that service be made within a 18 specified time. But if the plaintiff shows good cause for the failure, the court must extend the time for service for an appropriate period.

19 Plaintiffs have not shown good cause in this case: they made no real effort to contact, much less
20 serve, defendant until September 2008. A single phone call to the City’s Human Resources
21 Department at the outset of this litigation does not excuse a year long delay in service, especially 22 after defendants provided a means through which defendant Stevens could be, and ultimately 23 was, contacted. In such circumstances, the Court has the choice of extending the time in which 24 service may be effected or dismissing the action without prejudice. Fed. R. Civ. P. 4(m);
25 Henderson v. United States, 517 U.S. 654, 662-63 (1996); In re Sheehan, 253 F.3d 507, 512 (9th

ORDER DENYING DEFENDANT’S

1 Cir. 2001).<sup>1</sup>

2 Having reviewed the pleadings, declarations, and exhibits submitted by the parties, 3 defendant's motion to dismiss for defects in service is hereby DENIED. The Court prefers to 4 resolve disputes on the merits, and plaintiffs' one year delay in serving defendant Stevens, while 5 unexcused, is not extraordinary and has not prejudiced Stevens' ability to defend. Although 6 discovery is set to close in early January 2009, defendant's counsel has been involved in this
7 matter from the beginning and the litigation is not so far advanced that defendant lacks a 8 meaningful opportunity to participate. The Court expects plaintiffs to make every effort to 9 accommodate any additional discovery that defendant Stevens, individually, needs to undertake 10 in this matter. If an extension of the discovery deadline is necessary, the parties may submit an 11 appropriate stipulation and order. In addition, a dismissal without prejudice would likely result 12 in two lawsuits involving the same underlying events and occurrences, giving rise to 13 inefficiencies for all concerned and a risk of inconsistent verdicts.

14 Plaintiffs' citation to the record in the underlying criminal proceeding is irrelevant
15 to the service issue before the Court and has not been considered.

24 <sup>1</sup> Defendant's opening memorandum contains misstatements of law and a disturbing lack of 25 forthrightness. Contrary to defendant's argument at page 3, the Ninth Circuit has made it very clear that 26 the district court has the discretion to extend the period of time in which to serve even if good cause has not been shown. See, e.g., Efaw v. Williams, 473 F.3d 1038, 1041 (9th Cir. 2007).

1 For all of the foregoing reasons, defendant Stevens' motion to dismiss for failure
2 to serve within 120 days is DENIED.<sup>2</sup>

22 <sup>2</sup> Both Mr. Connelly and Mr. Buck are experienced trial lawyers. As such, they are expected to 23 conduct themselves, and to ensure that their co-counsel conduct themselves, in accordance with the 24 principles embodied in the Washington State Bar Association Creed of Professionalism, a copy of which
25 hangs in the undersigned's courtroom. The Court was disappointed and dismayed by the memoranda 26 filed by the parties: in many ways, they fell far short of these governing principles. The Court will carefully peruse future filings and will not hesitate to sanction counsel whose conduct falls below the standards of professionalism this Court has a right to expect from the experienced lawyers in this case.
